GUIDE TO A DOCTORATE IN FRANCE

The Guide to a Doctorate in France is designed to be the best reference resource for all the actors involved in the doctoral programme, presenting the conditions, procedures, practices and advice for the organisation of the doctoral system, the conduct of a doctoral project, and the career development for doctorate holders.

This guide is a reference of practices to be promoted, occasionally cautioning against the practices to be avoided. It is part of an all-encompassing approach to the continuous improvement of practices, within the legislative and regulatory framework in force. It differs from other practical guides produced by associations, institutions or doctoral schools in that it is aimed at all those involved in the doctorate, which gives it a national and transdisciplinary scope.

The ANDÈS is a national association of doctorate holders.
